IN THE CLAIMS

Please add new claims 22 through 28 as follows:

22. A system for organizing content available from a plurality of locations for presentation to a viewer, the system comprising:

a set of templates used to generate a set of corresponding content pages, each template identifying one or more locations at which content is available and one or more transformation techniques to be applied to the content to thereby generate a content

an album data structure operative to store the set of templates according to a predefined sequence and deliver one or more content pages to a viewer according to the predefined sequence upon request.
